Strikes Responsible For Postal Savings Decrease, Is Claim

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Assistant Postmaster General Glover declared today that erroneous unofficial reports as to the postal savings decline had been published. Deposits, in March, 1919, reached the unprecedented figure of $176,828,521, declining gradually since to $135,625,000 on September 30.

"The decrease," Mr. Glover said, "is due to a very large extent to three causes, namely, extremely heavy withdrawals in these offices adjacent to the coal fields, decreased deposits at the large railway centers and finally the recent withdrawal of the old issue of treasury savings certificates, paying four and one-half per cent and the issuing of a new series under date of October 1, at the reduced rate of four per cent."

MRS. ADAMS MAKES APPEAL TO WOMEN IN BEHALF OF PINCHOT

Election as Governor Means Much Also to Children of County.

DEEP INTEREST IN THEM

Gifford Pinchot's election will mean more to the women and children of Pennsylvania than can be estimated at a glance," says Mrs. Ella C. Adams, vice-chairman of the Fayette County Republican Committee, in a statement discussing the Republican ticket from the woman's point of view. "Women rallied to him because he bore aloft their ideals in government and for the same reason we endorse and support Senators Pepper and Reed," continued Mrs. Adams.

Mrs. Adams' statement follows in full:

"Gifford Pinchot's election will mean more to the women and children of Pennsylvania than can be estimated at a glance. His sincere interest in women's affairs will put on State in the front line for the Nation and give women many new opportunities in public service. It would be a deplorable calamity should Mr. Pinchot fail to be elected. Women rallied to him because he bore aloft their ideals in government and for the same reason we endorse and support Senators Pepper and Reed."

FIRST RIDING HOME
OCTOBER.

The seasons of the year being at hand when the local building and loan associations submit reports to their shareholders and their offices for the year, it becomes necessary for those which make for good to let it go some thought to this form of organization for the promotion of home-owning.

People can we be taken in the fact we are citizens of that state in the Union which hold all others in the development and growth of the building and loan institutions. Pennsylvania has almost 10,000 associations in the United States. The organizations are serving the respective communities where they operate to make it possible for thousands of persons to build or purchase home on a monthly payment basis who might not otherwise be able to accumulate sufficient to pay for them in any other way.

"Building and loan associations are the embodiment of the manifestation of the desire of the homeless for a roof over that may call the town. They are the key to better citizenship for the home owner will protect his own. That which he has acquired by a wise and steady investment will be defended against those who would take without giving or without giving compensation. But, under careful guidance the building and loan associations are as safe as human management can make them. They are business enterprises but it was they who accomplished, they are more than that. They are encouagers of their real home life and good citizenship."

Connellsville is the quota of these fine aids in home owning. All of them doing a splendid work in showing what compensation they can sums of money, equivalent to monthly rent is paid with regularity and safety invested, will accomplish in making the dream of prospective home owners come true.

"While the local associations have contributed in a most important way in providing the aid with homes as it is the conviction of those who have observed the condition as social as well as financial and to modest aid a man can be found in making people realize with the advantages they have to offer. Least to say, and meetings to elect officers the public and individual of the existence of a local association. It can only be natural part of prospective homeowners to be in contact with officers that they are brought in touch with the associations.

A little judicious advertising would help to greatly increase the public's information about the facilities they have to offer to those of modern society who wish to acquire homes of their own. It is conceded that one of the agencies contributing to the extraordinary growth of the local building associations and its mercantile ramifications has been newspaper advertising. The same when properly applied to building and loan associations would accomplish the same result, thereby increasing their usefulness in the community and adding to their strength and stability.

If the Democrats were honest with themselves they would admit that Chairman Huston of the Republican County Committee is very much in his estimate of the sweeping character of the victory the Republians will achieve next Tuesday.

The carriers of Balsam Township are to be congratulated in having shown their proficiency and understanding of the social and educational value of Community Day by having organized a permanent association to have charge of future gatherings of this kind. Other communities can very profitably follow this example.

It is a habit of some business men to please almost everybody with the way they handle a trade. The place from Salvatore's may headquarters is therefore, not unusual nor is it undeserving.

High School Will Have a Band at Game

Connellsville High School students and alumnae will stage one of the biggest rallies ever witnessed here when the Scottsdale grid ironers come to Fayette Field Saturday for the annual football classic. Fans are on foot to make the day a memorable one in football history and the team is pledged to make it the same kind of a victory.

Such a crowd is not been at Fayette Field in many years is predicted for Saturday. Connellsville looks to local people like the logical winner, but on the other hand Scottsdale rooters are backing their favorite to come out on top.

The Coker delegation of school rooters will march to the ground headed by a big band. The alumnae association has in this possible and on Friday evening, a mass meeting, also promoted by the alumnae, will be held at the High School Auditorium to stir up enthusiasm.

The cheer leaders of the school are looked to get the entire enrollment out if possible. The Cokers will occupy the bleachers on the right hand side of the field. Scottsdale will use the left hand field and a great cheering duel is looked for.

TORNADOES READY TO MELT WABASH THIS AFTERNOON

The Connellsville Tornadoes are scheduled to take the field this afternoon against the strong Wabash A. A eleven of Pittsburgh. The local grid ironers know they will be up against a tough proposition but have no doubts as to the outcome. The Wabash team holds a victory over the Hill Top "Y" team of Pittsburgh, which gave the Cokers a big shelling down in the last game played here. The game will be called at 3:45 o'clock.

Needs 16 Foods

Mothers should remember this. Growing children need 16 food elements, else they are underfed.

Those 16 elements are all in oats.

They are in right proportions.

That is why oats have held for ages the premier place as a child's food.

Mothers should also remember this.

Some oats are delicious, some are not.

Some oats are welcome and wanted. They form the favorite dish in the home.

Children eat such oats in plenty.

That is the reason for Mother's Oats.

That's why we named them Mother's Oats.

They are the flakes that children love, and mothers who care should get them.

MOTHER'S OATS

The luxury oats—large, luscious flakes. Yet they cost but one-half cent per dish. Get them for the children's sake.

A big crowd of Wabash rooters is Solsen, former High School quarterback and a new attraction on back, who has been reporting for the Tornado team will be little "Ad" practice this week.

NORMALCY BY 1925 IS AIM OF RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

Soviet Hopes to Attract Foreign Capital for Development of Many Industries.

The Soviet government has set 1925 as the year when the production of Russian industries should be brought up to an output approaching the pre-war normal.

Transport and agriculture and all auxiliary industries connected with them are to be re-established first. Special attention and liberal subsidies are recommended for oil and coal production.

Oil, which in 1913 yielded 1,600,000,000 pounds (or 120,000,000 pounds) is expected to yield 365,000,000 in 1925, and coal, which in 1913 yielded 1,600,000,000 pounds is expected to give 1,600,000,000 pounds in 1925, as against 1,600,000,000 pounds of oil in pre-war times, and 2,070,000,000 pounds of coal in 1913, the year of maximum production.

The metal industry, which in 1913 yielded 2,000,000,000 pounds, is expected to yield 1,200,000,000 in 1925, as against 2,574,000,000 pounds in 1913. In the textile industry, where 1,398,500 spindles and 30,000 looms are working in 1922, producing 550,000,000 yards of cloth, 3,000,000 spindles and 32,000 looms are expected to yield 1,420,000,000 yards of cloth in 1925.

This plan, however, cannot be accomplished without money, says a report to the recent communist party conferences. Money is needed from the state, both as fundamental and working capital. And the sum to bring the various industries through 1925 is fixed at 3,500,000,000 gold rubles.

As no such money can be found in the country, the report urges the necessity of attracting money from abroad, as otherwise the existence of the most important industries—metals, machine and mining—are greatly threatened.

Hecks Used in Medicines,
A Manchester, England, paper urges the renewed cultivation of old-fashioned medicinal herbs in English gardens. In the United States they have also gone out of fashion as a feature of the small garden, although they are imported in large quantities from Turkey, India and China, where they are grown purely for commercial purposes, as their medicinal value is recognized by many leading physicians. Tons of Medicinal herbs are used annually in the preparation of Dr. E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most successful medicine for women's ills. "She'll be well the minute she sees him," averred Belding, as he and Gates the cavalryman to Mercedes' room. There they left him; and Gates, at least, felt his ears ringing with the pitiful broken cry of joy.

When Belding and Gates hurried forth again the rangers were tending the tired horses. Upon returning to the house Jim Ladd came in his pipe, and Ladd declared that, hungry as he was, he had to tell his story.

"Shore, Beldin," began Ladd, "that was funny" about Diablo catchin' Blanco Sol. Funny ain't the word. I nearly laughed myself to death. Well, I rode in Sol's tracks all the way to Cedar. Never seen a rebel on a raider till I got to town. I went straight to the camp of the cavalrymen an' found them just coolin' off an' dressin' down their horses after what looked to me like a big ride.

"Some soldier took me to an officer's tent. Nell was there, some white an' all in. She just said, 'Ladd! You'

Thorne was there, too, an' he was been' worked over by the camp doctor. I didn't ask no questions, because I seen quiet was needed round that tent. After satisfying myself that Nell was all right, an' Thorne in no danger, I went out.

"Shore there was so darn many fellers who wanted to an' tried to tell me what'd come off, I thought I'd never find out. But I got the story piece by piece. An' here's what happened:

"Nell rode Blanco Sol a-terin' into camp, an' had a crowd round her in a jiffy. She told who she was, where she'd come from, an' what she wanted. Well, it seemed a day or so before Nell got there the cavalrymen had heard word of Thorne. You see, Thorne had left camp on leave of absence some time before. In a few more days it turned out pretty sure that for some reason Rojas was holdin' Thorne.

"Now, it happened when this news came Colonel Weede, was in Nogales with his staff, an' the officer left in charge didn't know how to proceed. Rojas' camp was across the line in Mexico, an' ridin' over there was serious business. It meant a whole lot of the best available men.

"Well, we made up our minds to let the camp in, an' we made our plans

an' never let the truth get out,

but we never told them soldiers

Rojas was holdin' Thorne, purty an' to make him tell where he was.

An' she begged the cavalrymen to rescue Thorne.

"From the way it was told to me,

I reckon them cavalrymen went in in the a.m. Fine fiery lot of young knobs, I thought, an' in a scrap

Put the other in charge, put in a telephonist, still held out for higher orders to rescue Thorne.

"Then Nell broke loose. You all know Nell's tongue is sometimes like a sharp thorn. I'd have give somethin' to see her work up that soldier outta. Can't you tellers see her

Blanco Sol with her eyes round

blue-k?

Ladd mopped his sweaty face with his dusty scarf. He was sweating. He was growing excited, tried in his narrative.

"Right out then Nell swore she'd go after Thorne. If them cavalrymen couldn't ride with a western girl to have a brother American—let them ride back! One fellow, under orders, tried to stop Blanco Sol. An' that feller invited himself to the hospital.

Then the cavalrymen went flyin' for their bosses. It didn't take long for every man in that camp to get wind of what was comin' off. Shore they musta been wild. They strung out after Nell in a thunderin' troupe.

"Rojas and his men varnished with out a shot. That ain't surprising.

There wasn't a shot fired by anybody.

The cavalrymen soon found Thorne an' hurried with him back on Uncle

Sam's land. Thorne was half naked, black an' blue all over, thin as a rail.

He was given food an' drink. Shore he seemed a starved man. But he pliked up wonderful, an' by the time
